

América Latina Hoy, Revista de Ciencias Sociales

Current editor(s) and email address for queries: Patricia Marengi, pmarengi@usal.es

Website: www.americalahoy.es

Publisher: Ediciones Universidad de Salamanca

Is the journal open access? Yes

Do authors pay a fee for publication? No

Frequency of publication: Three times a year

Articles published per year: 21

Minimum and maximum length of articles: 7,500–8,000

Languages of submission: Spanish

Translation policy: All articles appear in Spanish; no translation is requested until articles receive final acceptance.

Peer review process: Double-blind review

Approximate acceptance rate: 30%

Disciplines covered: social sciences; sociology, political science, economics, communication, cultural studies, history.

Quantitative-qualitative balance: 40/60

Editorial philosophy: América Latina Hoy, Revista de Ciencias Sociales, published three times a year, is an academic journal publishing scientific analysis of Latin American issues in all aspects: political, social, historical, cultural and economic. Its scope covers a broad and diverse range of topics of the current Latin American reality. The journal publishes two types of issues: national studies on one country, and thematic issues analyzing one specific topic. Original, unpublished works are specially considered by the journal, as papers produced in the framework of competitive national or international research projects, using empirical approaches to the problem studied.

Use of photographs or graphics: Monochrome in print and online version.

Are proposals for special guest-edited thematic issues considered? Yes.

Social media presence: Facebook

Planned future developments: América Latina Hoy is planning a shift to online-only publication.