University of Denver Josef Korbel School of International Studies – Latin America Center

Call for Postdoc Applications – Extended Deadline:

The Latin America Center at the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver announces Visiting Scholar positions in 2018 for scholars whose work has been disrupted by Hurricane Maria in Puerto Rico. Given the devastation of the infrastructure, the Latin America Center offers funding, time and space that can be devoted to scholarly work/writing. Our goal is to support our colleagues in Puerto Rico during this time of crisis, especially PhD students finishing a dissertation, contingent faculty whose employment has been disrupted, and others whose condition has been most affected by the hurricane. The Latin America Center will be considering applications for 10-week (one academic quarter) residencies at the University of Denver in Denver, CO.

Eligibility:

- We are prioritizing advanced doctoral candidates and non-tenure track faculty and researchers, but we will consider tenured and tenure-track faculty whose work has been gravely affected.
- Ideally, postdocs will be scholars with an interest in Latin America, development, political economy, and international relations.

Description of Residency:

- Each scholar will be provided assistance of $5,000 in living expenses to cover travel, lodging, and meals.
- The Latin America Center will also provide an office space in either a communal space or in a shared office space with a desk and access to email, internet, fax, copying, scanning and library facilities.
- Scholars will choose Winter, Spring, Summer quarter for residency; (Winter: January 1, 2018 thru March 15, 2018; Spring: March 15, 2018 thru May 31, 2018; Summer: June 19 through August 17, 2018)

Instructions to submit application in English or Spanish:

- An updated CV, including contact information (email address and phone number)
- A two-page research statement describing your current situation, the focus of your research, and how you will benefit from this residency.
- We also request a statement of experience creating diverse and inclusive research, teaching, and scholarly enterprise.

DEADLINE: Friday, December 15, 2017. Please submit as an attachment through email to: jksis.lac@du.edu.
