President’s Report

George Washington University

The LASA Endowment Campaign has been underway for nine months, and significant strides have been made. LASA now boasts a total of 23 Life Members. Many of those who have not yet become Life Members have made generous contributions. Carmen Diana Deere, Past President and Chair of LASA’s Development Committee, has been working tirelessly with Sandy Klinzing, LASA’s Assistant Director for Institutional Advancement, to contact our higher-income members and urge their support for our campaign. Also, you should have received a LASA membership questionnaire, in which we seek your input into our campaign strategy. To date, over 1,000 members have returned the questionnaires, and the responses have been very helpful.

However, the campaign did suffer a setback: on December 1, LASA’s proposal for an Endowment Challenge Grant to the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) was denied. Our proposal survived to the very last round of the competition; one of the factors in the denial appears to have been budget cutbacks suffered by NEH. Although we have not yet received the written comments about the proposal, NEH’s staffperson suggested that continuing doubts about LASA’s commitment to the humanities and about our ability to meet our fund-raising goals were the primary reasons behind the denial. In early February, the LASA Executive Council will meet, and a key item on the agenda will be how we will modify our campaign strategy given NEH’s decision. In any case, we are committed to forwarding the campaign, with or without NEH.

We have been working hard to strengthen LASA’s financial base in other ways as well. Under the direction of Sandy Klinzing, our procedures for membership retention and recruitment have been enhanced; one happy result is that we have an all-time high of 3,382 members. Our previous all-time high was 3,167 in 1992. In accord with our commitment to The Ford Foundation, we will be making a special

Eleventh Annual LASA Field Seminar in Nicaragua
June 20-30, 1995

Professor Richard Stahler-Sholk will conduct the eleventh annual Latin American Studies Association summer field seminar in Nicaragua, June 20-30, 1995. The seminar is designed for Latin American generalists, Nicaragua specialists, and advanced graduate students.

The program is intended to give LASA scholars a close-up view of the complex reality of Nicaragua today. Participants will have interviews and discussions with leading political, cultural and social actors across the political spectrum.

To facilitate research and to encourage ongoing work in this area, the group will be introduced to people, institutions, organizations, resources, protocols and methods for studying Nicaragua. There will be meetings with Nicaraguan scholars and visits to social science research centers and universities.

Though much of the time will be spent in Managua, there will be day trips to rural communities. The program will be tailored to the major interests of the participants, and efforts will be made to accommodate individual interests.

The seminar can serve as an overview introduction to the generalist and first-time attenders and to bring the specialist up to date. To understand how the seminar works, prospective participants are advised to read the report of the 1994 trip in the Fall 1994 issue of the Forum (pages 11-14).

Participants are required to be Spanish-speaking or to have

Would you like your own offprint of the

LASA is making available two offprints from

The Handbook of Latin American Studies was launched in 1936 by Lewis Hanke, its first editor. Since that time it has continued to provide annotated bibliographies of the most significant publications on Latin America in the social sciences and humanities. Authors have appreciated its authoritative comments on their publications as well as access the Handbook provides to other specialists and their research.

In the interest of making information in the Handbook more broadly accessible, the Latin American Studies Association has agreed to a request by the Library of Congress and the University of Texas Press, publishers of the Handbook, that LASA offer photocopies of two large sections of Volume 53—the government and politics and the international relations entries—to scholars who would like to own their own desk copies.

When ordering, please detach or photocopy the form below.

The entire Volume 53, with entries that also include anthropology, economics, geography and sociology, is available from the University of Texas Press for $75.00. Order from The University of Texas Press, Box 7819, AUSTIN TX 78713.

the congress—about 20 percent more scholars than for Atlanta. For this purpose, our 1994-95 Finance Committee has been established: members include Eduardo Gamarra, Jane Jaquette, Johanna Mendelson, Mitchell Seligson and Rose Spalding as well as Executive Director Reid Reading and Sandy Klinzing; I am serving as chair. We are pleased that The Ford Foundation is continuing its Junior Lecturing Fellowship Program, again funding the travel of more than 20 junior scholars to the congress as well as to a U.S. university. Our goal is to maintain the support of the foundations that have been our traditional mainstays as well as to attract support from additional foundations, the U.S. Agency for International Development, the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, several corporations, and international airlines.

In order that these institutions’ support for the travel of Latin American scholars may yield multiplier effects, a committee called “Panels Plus” has also been formed. Committee members will review lists of prospective Latin American experts at the Washington D.C. congress and consider the organization of supplemental events in which these experts might participate. Also, committee members will identify Washington D.C.-based specialists on Latin America who are not familiar with LASA and encourage their attendance at the congress. Committee members currently include Lou Goodman (American University), Peter Hakim (Inter-American Dialogue), Nora Lustig (Brookings Institution), Johanna Mendelson (American University and U.S. Agency for International Development), Moises Naim (Carnegie Endowment), Joe Tulchin (Woodrow Wilson Center), and George Vickers (Washington Office on Latin America); additional members may be invited too.

Although our primary concern in recent months has been preparation for the 1995 Congress, our plans for LASA 1997 are also evolving. Despite intense effort by Executive Director Reid Reading, a return to Puerto Rico proved impossible: the convention center will be undergoing renovation during the relevant period. However, we are maintaining our commitment to a site in Latin America for 1997. Guadalajara, Mexico, now appears to be our most likely site; Reid travelled there in December to initiate negotiations.

In the previous LASA Forum, Wayne Smith, the Chair of LASA’s Task Force on Scholarly Relations with Cuba, and I advised LASA members about the Clinton administration’s tighter restrictions upon scholarly travel to Cuba—requiring all professional researchers to apply for a specific Treasury Department license at least six weeks in advance, without assurance that the license will be granted. We urged members to express their opposition to these restrictions. On November 30, in an act of civil disobedience, Wayne and three other LASA members (Phil Brenner, Jean Handy, and effort in 1995 to secure new institutional members, especially in Latin America. For the first time, LASA brochures and materials will be printed in Spanish and Portuguese as well as English. At the 1995 LASA Congress, special sessions will be held on institutional fund-raising, endowment fund management, and institution-building through volunteer board development—sessions that we expect to be of particular interest to Latin American centers.

We believe that the September 28-30, 1995 Congress in Washington, D.C. will be an outstanding event. The Program Office at Cornell received over 450 session proposals and more than 600 individual paper proposals around the November 1 deadline, a record number. They are now under consideration by the 16 Program Section Heads. Those totals do not include special events such as plenaries and meetings sponsored by the LASA Task Forces, proposals for which are due by January 15, 1995. Reflecting members’ response to LASA’s growing emphasis on the humanities, the largest number of proposals of any Program Section (61 panels plus nearly 90 individual papers) was in Literature and the Arts. A return to the procedure of centralized submission to the Program Office prior to distribution to Section Heads has reduced the confusion of duplicate submissions and ensured that proposals are reviewed by the most appropriate Program Section. Also, the Program Office has started earlier on building the database from which the printed program will emerge in mid-1995.

The Chair of the Local Arrangements Committee for Washington ’95, John Bailey (Georgetown University), is also planning various activities that will enhance the congress. Our traditional Wednesday evening welcoming reception will be held at Georgetown University’s magnificent Intercultural Center. John and I are also in touch with staff at the Organization of American States, the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Library of Congress to arrange visits for congress participants. We will also be facilitating participants’ access to cultural and culinary opportunities in the most Hispanic parts of Washington D.C.—which are only minutes from our centrally-located hotel.

Of course, crucial to the success of the congress is the participation of Latin American scholars. For the 1994 Congress in Atlanta, we were very grateful to the Ford Foundation, which provided more than $50,000 for the travel of 21 Junior Lecturers from Latin America and additional funds for the travel of five scholars from the Caribbean. We were also delighted that the Inter-American Foundation supported the travel of 35 experts, the MacArthur Foundation 25, and the North-South Center 11. For 1995, our goal is to support the travel of 150 Latin American scholars to John Nichols) travelled to Cuba without seeking Treasury Department licenses. In Havana, they met with scholars at the University of Havana. Upon their return, they were interrogated by Treasury Department agents. The delegation was accompanied by a lawyer representing the Center for Constitutional Rights; a key goal is to launch a legal challenge against the administration's regulations. Our expectation is that delegations will travel to Cuba monthly in defiance of the restrictions. Interested members should contact Wayne at the Center for International Policy, 1755 Massachusetts Ave. NW, Suite 324, Washington DC 20036. Telephone: 202-232-3317 or fax: 202-232-3440.

At our February meeting, the Executive Council will be discussing many issues: from our endowment campaign strategy to our distribution procedures for papers at our congresses, from our political resolutions to the format of our publications. We hope that, by completing your membership questionnaire or communicating with us in another way, you will have contributed to our discussion. Our goal for 1995 is to continue enhancing our association's ability to serve its members.

ATTENTION AUTHORS

Your colleagues can see your monographs and articles first hand if your publishers exhibit at the 1994 LASA Congress. If your publishers are not listed here, you might want to ask them to contact LASA's book exhibit coordinator, Harve Horowitz, for information on how to secure exhibit space. But hurry! There are only a few spaces left. Advertising in the LASA program is another valuable opportunity and is not expensive. For either exhibit space or advertising information your publishers may contact: Mr. Harve Horowitz, 11620 Vixens Path, Ellicott City, MD 21403. Telephone: (410) 997-0763; fax: (410) 997-0764.

LASA Endowment Fund Support

Thanks to the generosity of our members, we have seen a strong growth in support for the endowment funds.

Since our last report to you in the fall LASA Forum, thirteen members have demonstrated their commitment to the association through LASA Founding Life Memberships:

Edna Acosta-Belén  John Coatsworth  Paul Doughty  William M. Leogrande
Ronald H. Chilcote  Bill R. DeWalt  Nora Louise Hamilton  Christopher H. Lutz
Jack Child  Jorge Dominguez  Evelyne Huber  David Scott Palmer

And along with LASA’s previous Founding Life Members:

Cole Blasier  Cornelia Flora  Marysa Navarro  Thomas Skidmore
Carmen Diana Deere  Cynthia McCintock  Helen Safa  Lars Schoultz
Richard Fagen  Chris Mitchell

They bring the number of LASA Life memberships to 23! The association is truly grateful for their support.

In addition, the following individuals and institutions have contributed at varying levels to the LASA Humanities Endowment Fund:

Maureen Ahern  Nora Glickman  Paul Oquist
Herman O. Aldas-Palacios  Kevin J. Healy  Luis H. Peña
Cynthia Arson  Johnathan A. Hilton  Ineke L. Phaf
Leslie Bethell  James Howe  Mary L. Pratt
Aura Marina Boada  Terry Karl  Lois Proaño-Gómez

During the past two months, letters of appeal were sent to top dues-paying members of the association, seeking their support for the endowment campaign. Many of these have been followed by phone calls from members of the LASA Development Committee. LASA gratefully acknowledges all those who have made donations to either endowment fund, as well as those who have indicated their desire to do so, but at a later date. Member support is extremely important now and even more so when LASA begins to seek external support for the campaign. ■
PAUL DOUGHTY MATCH COMPLETED

The association owes a particular debt of gratitude to Paul Doughty for his support of our endowment campaign efforts. Earlier this year Paul issued a challenge to his LASA colleagues when he indicated he would contribute $300 to the endowment fund, and another $200 when five of his colleagues matched his gift. We are delighted to announce that five generous members have made the match possible: Cynthia McClintock; Richard Adams; Carmelo Mesa-Lago; Marta E. Morello Frosch; and Marianne Schmink. In addition to his gift, Professor Doughty has become a Founding Life Member as well! Many thanks to Paul and to everyone who made all this possible.

LASA’s Electronic Job Bulletin Board Back On-Line
by Glenn Sheldon

Last month the University of Pittsburgh required the Latin American Studies Association to set up a new entry point to its electronic job bulletin board. After some confusion and delay, LASA finally is able to resume this service on the Internet. Listings of interest to Latin Americanists will be updated monthly, and are offered at no cost to individuals with Internet access.

To access the electronic job bulletin board:
1. At your Internet prompt, type:
   FINGER LASA@VMS.CIS.PITT.EDU
   (If this first step is ineffective, check with your institution’s systems operator to see which customized Internet "pointer," if any, you should utilize.)
2. Type: FINGER LASA
   (“Scroll lock” on your keyboard should effectively display job bulletin board screen by screen; however, if it is ineffective contact your systems operator for the command your terminal emulator should utilize.)

LASA would appreciate hearing from members effectively using other protocols for “fingering” the bulletin board via Internet, so that we may inform other LASA members who have primary access to different types of systems.

LASA depends on institutions to supply information for the bulletin board. Notices should be sent to Publications Director at the e-mail address on page two of this Forum. For LASA members without access to an e-mail system, a free copy of the current listing is available. Sorry, but we cannot send hard copy of job listings to non-members. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Secretariat, Latin American Studies Association, Attn: Glenn Sheldon, Publications Director, 946 William Pitt Union, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA 15260.

full comprehension of Spanish. No translations will be provided. The entire seminar, including all accommodations, meals, in-country bus transportation and program will cost $990. Bona fide students receive a $90 discount. Flights to and from Managua are not included. The facilitator will help prepare for the trip with all relevant information.

Since 1990 when the Sandinistas became the first revolutionary party to hand over government after losing elections, Nicaragua has continued to undergo important processes of change. Now with the FSLN splintering, economic austerity programs taking a heavy toll, and elections approaching in 1996, this summer’s seminar will offer an opportunity to study Nicaragua at a critical crossroad. We anticipate a full group. A maximum of sixteen participants will be accepted so it is advisable to respond soon.

For an application and/or more information, write: Professor Richard Stahler-Sholk, LASA Nicaragua Seminar Coordinator, Pitzer College, 1050 N. Mills Ave., Claremont, CA 91711-6110. Or contact: Alice McGrath, Facilitator, P.O. Box 1782, Ventura, CA 93002. Telephone: 805-648-4560 (best time to call is any day from 8AM-7PM Pacific Time); fax: 805-653-6359.

ACLS TO PUBLISH LASA REPORT

LASA, a constituent member of the American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS), was among a handful of ACLS member associations whose report on internationalization was chosen for publication by the Council. The report was presented at the ACLS Conference on "The Internationalization of Scholarship and the Role of U.S.-based Learned Societies," held November 11-13, 1994, at the Westfields International Conference Center in Chantilly, Virginia.

MEMBER RENEWAL RATE AT ALL-TIME HIGH

The response to LASA’s plea to renew in a timely fashion has been taken very seriously by hundreds of our members. In a mailing to LASA members we noted that in an average year four of every five LASA members renewed their memberships after the beginning of the membership year.

For 1995, the estimate is that nearly one-half of all renewals will have reached the secretariat by the end of 1994. This is a tremendous improvement, and we will do even better next year. Thanks to all of you “earlier birds” and to Sandy Klinzing, LASA’s Assistant to the Director for Institutional Advancement, for her fine efforts to retain and expand LASA’s membership base.
CALL FOR BIDS ON THE LASA SECRETARIAT

The Executive Council of the Latin American Studies Association (LASA) announces a request for proposals to host the LASA Secretariat, headquarters of the Association. The present contract with the University of Pittsburgh is due to expire June 30, 1996. Contracts normally are for a five-year period.

Since its founding in 1966, LASA has become the largest organization of Latin Americanists in the world, with over 3,300 members in 42 countries. Every 18 months the association sponsors the LASA International Congress, the world’s largest gathering of Latin Americanists. LASA also publishes the LASA Forum, a quarterly newsletter that also includes brief, researched-based articles of a timely nature. The Latin American Research Review (LARR), LASA’s official periodical and the premier journal for Latin Americanists, presently is published at the University of New Mexico.

The host institution for LASA is responsible for recruiting the LASA executive director, a chief assistant to the executive director, an assistant director for institutional advancement, and a part-time director of publications. Partial salary is provided by the institutional host for the executive director, full salary for the chief assistant, and full salary for the half-time publications director, with LASA paying the salary of the assistant director for institutional advancement.

Of prime importance are the qualifications of the proposed executive director. The LASA executive director has ultimate responsibility for managing the Secretariat, hires the staff, maintains the financial standing of the association, oversees all LASA publications except LARR, negotiates contracts, manages and reports on grants currently valued at one-half million dollars, and has overall responsibility for the coordination of all official LASA meetings, including the International Congresses and meetings of the LASA Executive Council. The executive director represents the association in contact with other organizations, including governmental and private agencies, foundations, other scholarly societies, and institutions of higher education. In general, the executive director implements the policies established by the LASA Executive Council and works to promote the welfare of the field. Given the marked growth of LASA over the last few years, the present executive director dedicates full-time to the association.

LASA requires four furnished offices, one of which is a large working office for the chief assistant and for temporary personnel under the chief assistant’s supervision. Storage space is required for LASA archives. LASA possesses in its own right all the equipment necessary for its operations except for a large volume photocopier. LASA pays for all office expenses, including all installation and equipment charges and charges for telephone and fax communications.

Completed proposals should include a short statement of the likely advantages of the host institution, identify a proposed executive director and submit a curriculum vitae for that individual, and specify the nature and extent of support to be provided by the proposed host institution. Also required is a letter from the responsible administrative official (e.g., dean, vice-president, or president) of the proposed host institution, confirming the institution’s commitment to LASA.

Proposals are due July 1, 1995, and the contract will be awarded no later than January 1996. Completed proposals should be directed to Cynthia McClintock, LASA President, Department of Political Science, George Washington University, Washington DC 20052, or fax 202-994-6147.

For further information, including job descriptions for all secretariat personnel, contact Reid Reading, LASA Executive Director, 946 William Pitt Union, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh PA 15260. Telephone 412-648-7928; fax 412-624-7145; Internet LASA@VMS.CIS.PITT.EDU.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION of the
LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES ASSOCIATION

On September 10, 1994, the Steering Committee of the Consortium of Latin American Studies Programs (CLASP) decided to withdraw from the Latin American Studies Association (LASA). The LASA Executive Council agreed to accept this decision, and proposes that the LASA Constitution be amended in the following manner:

First, Article V., section 1.a., reproduced below, will be amended to omit the italicized portions below:

Article V. Executive Council

1. The Executive Council shall administer the affairs of the Association, and for corporate purposes be considered as its Board of Directors.
   a. The Executive Council shall consist of nine voting members: the Immediate Past President, President, Vice-President, and six elected members; and three ex-officio members with voice but no vote: the LASA Executive Director, the editor of the Latin American Research Review; the current Congress Program Chair; and chair of the Consortium of Latin American Studies Programs (CLASP) Steering Committee.

Second, Article VI., reproduced below, will be omitted from the LASA Constitution, and subsequent Articles renumbered accordingly:

Article VI. CLASP

The Consortium of Latin American Studies Programs (CLASP) is the institutional affiliate of the Association. Nothing in the CLASP constitution may be contrary to the Constitution and By-Laws of the Association.

PROPOSAL FOR FILM FESTIVAL SUBMISSIONS

Film and video materials not integrated into a panel, workshop, or meeting may be presented in one of two ways: (1) as selections in the LATIN AMERICAN FILM FESTIVAL; or (2) as part of the noncompetitive FILM EXHIBIT of visual and informational materials. Those not selected for the festival may be presented at the exhibit for a fee. Please use a separate form for each film/video proposed. Please type or print clearly.

Films and videos chosen for the FESTIVAL are designated as recipients of the 1995 LASA Award of Merit in Film for "excellence in the visual presentation of educational and artistic materials on Latin America." Approximately 15 such awards will be made. Selection criteria are: artistic, technical, and cinematographic excellence; uniqueness of contribution to the visual presentation of materials on Latin America; and relevance to disciplinary, geographic, and thematic interests of LASA members, as evidenced by topics proposed for panels, workshops, and other sessions at recent congresses. Films and videos released after December 1993 and those that will premiere at the congress will be given special consideration if they also meet the above criteria. Please submit applications for films or videos for the Juried LASA Film Festival by June 1, 1995, to the above address.

The noncompetitive FILM EXHIBIT of Latin American films, videos and descriptive materials (brochures, catalogues, etc.) is organized in conjunction with the book exhibit. For information, contact Harve C. Horowitz & Associates, LASA Film Exhibit, 11620 Vixens Path, Ellicott City, MD 21043; 301/997-0763.

LETTER

To the editor, LASA Forum:

I would like to call to the attention of your readers an article of mine, "The Latin American Studies Association vs. the United States: The Verdict of History," Academic Questions, Volume 7, No. 3, Summer 1994, Pages 40-55.

This essay (a copy of which I will send to any LASA member who writes for it) examines a quarter century of LASA resolutions, proclamations and reports concerning U.S. policies in Latin America. The analysis shows that, from the time LASA began to adopt political resolutions in the early 1970s, it has practiced a double standard, denouncing in impassioned language atrocities perpetrated by Latin American military regimes, and, as one resolution had it, "U.S. Complicity Therein" (LASA Newsletter, March 1974, pages 9-10), while, at the same time, passing over in silence similar violations by Castro's Cuba.

This double standard is in direct contradiction to LASA's own proclamations, such as the one adopted at the 1976 Atlanta meeting and subsequently ratified by mail ballot:

A Reaffirmation of the Commitment of the Latin American Studies Association to the Universal Applicability and Necessity of Academic Freedom and Social Responsibility of the Higher Educational Community:

THAT the Latin American Studies Association reaffirms its beliefs that Academic Freedom is necessary for a free and progressive society, in all nations of the world and...

THAT U.S. institutions and organizations representing academia and individuals acting on their behalf, should be ready to take all necessary steps to dissociate themselves from any actions and relationships with countries in which it is evident that massive and systematic violations of academic freedom have occurred in order that such actions and relationships might not appear to condone those violations (LASA Newsletter, June 1976, page 6; emphasis added).

Had LASA applied this standard consistently across all regimes, today the association would enjoy a sterling reputation as a staunch and incorruptible defender of human rights and academic freedom. Alas, this was not to be. LASA has only seen fit to criticize right-wing military regimes, as well as the United States. But Fidel Castro's dictatorship over Cuba, now in its 36th year (a Latin American record), has escaped LASA's censure.

LASA's Task Force on Human Rights and Academic Freedom has not published a single word on the systematic violations of human rights, or the complete lack of academic freedom in Castro's Cuba. And, far from disassociating itself from such a regime, LASA has not hesitated to appear to condone these violations through the many projects of the "Task Force on Scholarly Relations with Cuba."

The only topic that has been deemed worthy of a LASA resolution on Cuba has been the U.S. economic embargo. Ironically, the most recent resolution, offered at the Atlanta meeting, accuses the United States of having "built a wall between two nations by banning travel and restricting cultural exchange with Cuba, preventing the free flow of people and ideas between two countries in contradiction with the principles of freedom of thought and civil liberties for all peoples..." (LASA Forum, Spring 1994, page 29; emphasis added).

The fact that time and again Cuban artists, writers, journalists, human rights activists, and academics have been beaten, thrown in prison, forced to make public confessions, or exiled for expressing dissenting thoughts was passed over in silence in this as in every other previous resolution on Cuba.

Whether LASA should be in the business of adopting political resolutions was once a controversial question. The matter was decided in favor of such activity, even though the only survey ever taken of the membership, by a 60 percent to 38 percent margin, disapproved of political resolutions (LASA Newsletter, December 1973, page 26). Having adopted the practice of adopting political resolutions, it was incumbent on LASA to hold every regime to the same standard. By never speaking to the violations of human rights and academic freedom in Castro's Cuba, LASA has abdicated a moral responsibility assumed when it began criticizing other regimes in the Americas.

Now that Fidel Castro is the only dictatorial hold-out in Latin America, isn't it time to call on Havana to respect "the principles of freedom of thought and civil liberties" LASA has held high everywhere else?

Sincerely,
Alfred G. Cuzán

A conference on "The Reform of Mexican Agrarian Reform" will be held at Columbia University April 6-7, 1995. The conference celebrates the 100th anniversary of Professor Frank Tannenbaum's birth and his pioneering 1929 work, The Mexican Agrarian Revolution. Tannenbaum stressed the significance for Mexican agriculture of the ejido, which by the late 1980s held more than one-half the arable land. In 1991 an amendment to the Mexican constitution enabled, but did not compel, privatization of ejido land. The conference brings together participants in and scholars of the ejido and its reform to evaluate the history of agrarian reform in Mexico and the newly enacted reform. Papers will be presented by, among others, Armando Bartra, Wayne Cornelius, Alain de Janvry, Ezequiel Ezcurra, Jonathan Fox, Luin Goldring, Gustavo Gordillo de Anda, Neil Harvey, Jorge Ibarra, Friedrich Katz, David Myhre, Rob Smith, Lynn Stephen, William Thiesenhusen, Victor Toledo and Scott Whiteford. For details, including information on special rates for accommodations, please e-mail: LRRHC@CUNYVM.CUNY.EDU; or write: "Agrarian Reform," University Seminars, 606 Dodge Hall, Columbia University, New York NY 10027. The Institute of Early American History and Culture will hold a working seminar on the antecedents and development of racism in Europe, Africa, and the Americas in the period 1400-1700. Scheduled for the spring of 1996, the seminar will explore the state of scholarship on the emergence of race-related attitudes and ideologies through paper to be read in advance of the meeting. Scholars in all disciplines, including European, African, and Latin American history, anthropology, literature, and cultural studies, are invited to submit proposals of approximately 12 to 15 pages, in English, describing the substance of their subject. The following themes have been selected to focus inquiry: explorations of these areas are especially encouraged: 1. Cultural and territorial frontiers as arenas for the formation of racism. 2. Experiences of collective and personal encounter where conceptions of self and other are formed and transformed. 3. Emergence of racist discourse and imagery serving structures of domination and exploitation. 4. Literary representations of race and racism. 5. Religious dimensions of racism and racist dimensions of religion. 6. Transactions of race, gender, and sexuality. Authors of accepted proposals will be asked to expand their presentations to about 30 pages including notes. These drafts will be circulated to all seminar participants six weeks before the date of the meeting. Following the seminar and a period for authors' revisions, the Institute intends to make the papers the basis for an issue of the William and Mary Quarterly devoted entirely to the subject. The deadline for proposals is October 1, 1995. For full information, contact: Ronald Hoffman, Institute Director, or Michael McGiffert, Quarterly Editor, at the Institute: P.O. Box 8781, Williamsburg, VA 23187-8781. Telephone: 804-221-1110 or -1125; fax: 804-221-1047.

In cooperation with the New England American Studies Association, Mystic Seaport Museum is inviting paper and panel proposals for a conference titled "Race, Ethnicity and Power in Maritime America." To be held in Mystic, Connecticut September 14-17, 1995, this national conference will be a multi-disciplinary discussion of race and ethnicity as related to the maritime communities or enterprise of North America and the Caribbean. The Museum welcomes proposals from graduate and postgraduate scholars, museum professionals and independent researchers engaged in maritime studies and related fields. Proposals for panel sessions which emphasize prior communication and collaboration among panelists is strongly encouraged. Please mail or fax a 250-word abstract of the proposed paper or panel and curriculum vitae before February 15, 1995 to: Dr. James Miller, Director, American Studies Department, Trinity College, 300 Summit St., Hartford, CT 06106-3100. Fax: 203-297-5258.

Seventh Conference of North American and Cuban Philosophers and Social Scientists call for papers and invitation to participate in Havana, Cuba, June 9-23, 1995. North American philosophers and social scientists as well as social change activists are invited to participate along with Cuba counterparts in this annual event in Havana, Cuba. In past years as many as 75 North Americans have joined with 140 Cubans for a week of discussions, followed by another week of visits to various organizations and sites of interest. The seventh conference will take place at the University of Havana from June 12-16. Call for papers on the following thematic areas: Renovation of Marxism; Global Economy and Global Capitalism; Models of Socialism; Construction of Socialism/Problems of Socialism; Democracy and Social Justice; Post-Modernism and Marxism; Epistemology and Methodology; Ethics and Society; Education and Society; Literature and Popular Culture; Science, Technology and Ecology; Identity and Culture; Class, Race, Gender and Sexuality; Social Policy: U.S. Relations with Cuba and Latin America; Analysis of Capitalism; Political Economic Theory; and Revolutionary Thinkers. We are looking for papers and Commission organizers in these and other areas. Papers should be no more than 8 pages long so as to maximize discussion time at the conference. Commission proposals and paper abstracts were requested January 23, 1995 with completed papers due March 1, 1995. As opportunities for oral presentation are limited, priority consideration will be given early applicants. Following the conference in Havana, a select group will carry the conference to other parts of Cuba. This will enable you to see more of Cuba: Matanzas, June 19-21; Camaguey, June 19-22; Holguin, June 23-27. Cost: Approximately $900 for a basic 14-day stay in Havana at university accommodations, all group activities included from Miami departure to Miami return. There will be some additional cost for transportation outside of Havana. Some scholarship assistance may be available for those with limited means. Deadlines: January 23, 1995—abstracts for papers and proposals for commissions (1-2 pages); March 1, 1995—completed papers (8 pages max.); April 1, 1995—completed application. For additional information or to request application materials, write Cliff DuRand, 1443 Gorschuch Ave., Baltimore, MD 21218. Telephone: 410-243-3118; fax: 410-235-5325; e-mail: DURAND@MORGANX.BITNET.

RESEARCH AND STUDY OPPORTUNITIES

The Aston Magna Foundation for Music and the Humanities announces the 12th cross-disciplinary Aston Magna Academy under the direction of Raymond Erickson to be held June 18-July 8, 1995 at the Mason Gross School of the Arts, Rutgers University (New Brunswick, NJ). Supported by a major grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the 1995 Aston Magna Academy will bring together approximately 80 scholars and artists representing the fields of art, architecture, cultural history, dance, literature, music history and performance, history of science, religion, Spanish and Latin American studies, among others, to explore the topic "Cultural Cross-Currents: Spain and Latin America, ca. 1550-1750." The focus of the program will be on Spanish culture from the peak of the Golden Age up to the Enlightenment and its transformation in the New World, especially colonial Mexico and Peru. Faculty lectures, demonstrations, and master classes will be supplemented with ad hoc discussion groups, readings of drama, poetry and music, presentations by participants who are themselves specialists in the area, and classes in historical dance. Twenty-two NEH fellowships will be available for full-time humanities faculty at American colleges. Limited scholarship assistance from non-Federal sources will be available for those not qualifying for NEH stipends (e.g., graduate students, freelance scholars, musicians, dancers and others). Application deadline is March 1, 1995, although late applications will be considered if openings remain. For application form and detailed program contact: Joseph Darby, Academy Administrator, 120 West 44th St. #1001, New York, NY 10036-4020. Telephone: 212-819-9123; e-mail: JZD@CUNYVM1.GC.CUNY.EDU.

Stipends are available from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) for two summer seminars of interest to Latin Americanists. Professor Candace Slater will offer a seminar on "Images of Amazonia and Ideas of Image-Making" at the University of California at Berkeley (June 12-July 28, 1995) while Professors Elias L. Rivers and Georgina Sabat-Rivers will direct a seminar on "Baroque Literature in its Spanish and Spanish-American Contexts" at the State University of New York at Stony Brook (June 19-August 4, 1995). The Amazon seminar will shed light on contemporary notions of the Amazon—and on the larger processes of symbolic creation and transformation—by looking at a wide variety of materials including novels, TV documentaries, World Bank policy statements, and Save the Rainforest picture books and calendars. The Baroque literature seminar will explore literary, social, and ideological aspects of Baroque literature in the seventeenth-century world of Spain and its colonies in the New World, examining a series of literary texts such as Gongora’s Primera Soledad and Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz’s Sueno and Respuesta that have enlarged the Hispanic canon. Applications are due March 1, 1995. For further information and application forms for the Amazon seminar, write to: Professor Candace Slater, Department of Spanish and Portuguese, University of California at Berkeley, Berkeley, CA 94720. Telephone: 510-642-2114; fax: 510-643-5045; e-mail: AMAZON@GARNET.BERKELEY.EDU. Directors Rivers and Sabat-Rivers can be reached at Department of Hispanic Languages and Literatures, SUNY/Stony Brook, NY 11794.

NEH Summer Seminar for College Teachers 1995 call for applications for "Economic Development and Democratization in Argentina and Latin America, 1890 to the present" to be directed by David Rock, University of California at Santa Barbara, June 25-August 12, 1995. The seven-week seminar will examine the transitions to democracy and the "neo-liberal" reform agenda in contemporary Latin America during the 1980s and 1990s. The 1980s marked an important political shift in many parts of Latin America from authoritarian to democratic regimes, a transition followed in several nations by privatization programs and the dismantling of the interventionist state. The seminar will examine these changes, and evaluate future prospects, from a historical perspective, tying politics to economic development. Discussions and readings will explore the relationships between economic development and political change in Argentina, and examine the extent to which patterns found in Argentina recur among other large Latin American states: Brazil, Mexico and Chile. The seminar will examine how these trends have affected particular groups, including the labor movement and women. The seminar is intended for Latin American specialists from all disciplines, who will be assisted in developing personal research topics in related fields of their own choice. Twelve participants will receive stipends of $3600. Deadline for applications: March 1, 1995. For application materials and further information, contact: David Rock, Department of History, University of California at Santa Barbara, Santa Barbara, CA 93106. Telephone: 805-893-3662, 893-2991 or 569-7649; fax: 805-893-8795. You may also use the following e-mail address: ROCK@HUMANITAS.UCSB.EDU.

The Sixth Summer Intensive Portuguese Institute will be held at the University of Wisconsin at Madison from June 19-August 13, 1995, funded by a Title VI grant from the U.S. Department of Education. There will be an orientation scheduled for June 16, 1995. The Institute is rotated with the University of Pittsburgh as part of the consortium on Latin American Language Instruction (COLALI). It provides eight weeks of instruction in beginning Brazilian Portuguese, useful to students and researchers who wish to develop communication skills and reading knowledge for research. Instruction is four hours per day, five days per week. Knowledge of Spanish is required (2-3 years equivalency). The Institute features a newly revised text, guest lectures on Brazilian affairs and culture, films and videotapes. Application forms are available from: Department of Spanish and Portuguese, 1018 Van Hise, University Wisconsin at Madison, Madison, WI 53706. The application deadline is April 17, 1995. If space at the Institute permits, there will be a late application deadline May 15, 1995. Title VI FLAS fellowships providing tuition and a $1,500 stipend are available to graduate students. Request fellowship applications from the Institute sponsor: Latin American and Iberian Studies Program, 470 Van Hise, University of Wisconsin/Madison, Madison, WI 53706. The Title VI FLAS fellowship application deadline is February 17, 1995.

The Department of Social Sciences of the Universidad de Oriente, Santiago de Cuba, announces the Third International Workshop of Research and Social Work in the Community. The workshop will be held June 7-10, 1995 at the University. The workshop aims to continue dialogue and exchange between researchers and specialists in the various disciplines working on different aspects of community life. This exchange will include not only scholarly research done, but also those actively involved in community action. Themes for paper presentation include but are not limited to, problems of ethnicity in the community; cultural-economic relations and the problems of social prevention and the family; sociology of education and community studies; social anthropology and studies of communities; methods and techniques of community research; the role of the family in the community; social workers and the health program in Cuba; social work in Latin America, United States and Europe; and tourism and the community (eco-tourism). Abstracts of papers should be received by the committee by May 1, 1995 and should not exceed 250 words. The workshop will include general conference sessions, roundtables, student presentations, and courses for social workers with a practicum in the community. Organizing committee: Dr. Rafael Macías Reyes, President; Rachel Soler, Vice-President; Dr. Miguel Matute, Executive Secretary. For general information in the United States, contact: Ibed Vazquez, Department of Sociology, Brown University, Box 1916, Providence, RI 02912. Fax: 401-863-3213. The Latin American Program of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars announces the opening of competition for the 1995-96 academic year’s Fellowships for the study of Argentina. The Latin American Program is beginning a three-year project in conjunction with the government of Argentina with the aim of increasing interest in and knowledge of Argentina in the United States. Students enrolled in a recognized United States university doctoral program in any academic discipline and who, by the time they take up the award, have completed all required work toward their doctoral degrees, except their dissertations, are eligible. Three fellowships of $12,000 each will be awarded. Applicants must be willing to spend the 1995-96 academic year engaged in dissertation research on Argentina, at least six months of which must be fieldwork in the country. The dissertation itself must be related to Argentina, although Argentina may be a case study in a comparative analysis or it may be studied as an example of a particular theoretical or public policy issue. Completed applications, including all supporting material, must arrive at the Latin American Program by February 28, 1995. Faxed applications will not be accepted. For further information about the fellowship competitions and application requirements, contact: Latin American Program, The Woodrow Wilson Center, 1000 Jefferson Drive SW, Washington, D.C. 20560. PUBLICATIONS

The Committee on Honors and Members of the Modern Language Association invites nominations for the fifth annual Katherine Singer Kovacs Prize for an outstanding book published in English in the field of Latin American and Spanish literatures and cultures. The prize was established in 1990 by a gift from the family of Katherine Singer Kovacs, a member of the MLA who died in May 1989. A specialist in Spanish and Latin American literature and film, Professor Kovacs taught at Stanford University, the University of Southern California, and Whittier College. Under the terms of the gift, the prize selection committee will be especially interested in original, broadly interpretive books that enhance understanding of the interrelations among literature, the other arts, and society and that offer fresh perspectives on the field. The prize will be awarded in 1995 for a 1994 publication; the deadline for nominations is May 1, 1995. Authors of nominated books need not be members of the MLA. The award, which consists of a check for $1,000 and a certificate, will be presented to the winning author at the association’s annual convention in December 1995. Publishers may enter more than one title, but no book may compete for more than one MLA prize. For further information, write to: Richard Brod, Director of Special Projects, Modern Language Association; or call: 212-614-6406. Publishers of eligible books should send copies to: Katherine Singer Kovacs Prize, Modern Language Association, 10 Astor Place, New York, NY 10003-6981.

Politics in the Non Independent Caribbean will bring together different themes on the politics of non-independent Caribbean: British, Dutch, French, and United States territories. The editors believe that the non-independent territories of the Caribbean have not received comparative attention in Caribbean studies. It is our hope that the book will reflect the ongoing research on the different territories of the region, and that it will be a major contribution to understanding their current situation and problems. The book will be originally published in English by the University of Puerto Rico. We hope authors will submit essays on contemporary problems and issues that are historically grounded. Both case studies and comparative analyses are welcome. Contributions are encouraged that deal with the following topics: 1. Legal and constitutional issues of territories; legal debates on territorial arrangements and future options; 2. Economics organization and economic challenges; current economic pivots and alternative options for economic relations among territories; 3. Metropolitan practices in the territories; modes of management of the territories, metropolitan attitudes towards the territorial/colonial question; 4. Cultural problems in territories; domestic cultural policies; the interaction of national communities within the larger metropolitan State; identity constructions in the domestic space; 5. Ideology and movements. The discourse of parties, resistance and integration movements; party politics and territorial questions; ideologies and strategies for decolonization. Abstracts [of approximately 150 words] should be sent to either one of the editors. Inquiries are welcomed. Write to: Aarón Gamaliel Ramos or Angel Israel Rivera, Institute of Caribbean Studies, University of Puerto Rico, P.O. Box 23361, San Juan, PR 00931-3361.
We are preparing a book tentatively entitled Ethnicity, Race, and Nationality in the Caribbean that seeks to join contributions, from different perspectives and approaches, to the study of ethnicity, race and nationality in the Caribbean. Contributions are encouraged that deal with any of the following topics: the study and analysis of racial relations in the Caribbean; the "Idea of the Caribbean"; collective identities and national sovereignty; the importance of the migration experience in the formation of collective identities in the Caribbean. To express your interest send two (2) copies of an abstract of 150 words to: Juan Manuel Carrión, Institute of Caribbean Studies, P.O. Box 23361, San Juan, PR 00931-3361. Send your abstract by March 1, 1995. Editors: Juan Manuel Carrión and Aaron Gamaliel Ramos. For more information, telephone: 809-764-0000 x4214; fax: 809-764-3099.

"DISAPPEARANCES" AND POLITICAL KILLINGS: A MANUAL FOR ACTION

Amnesty International has launched a campaign to combat "disappearances" and political killings. This report is part of that campaign. It describes the human rights standards developed at the United Nations and the attempts made to put those standards into practice. It also presents a detailed program for the eradication of "disappearances" and political killings through prevention, investigation, and bringing those responsible to justice. It will provide activists around the world with ideas and tools for the eradication of these human rights abuses. It will be a valuable resource for years to come. Produced by the Al Dutch Section. Available in English or Spanish. 300 pages. March 1994 ISBN 90-6463-095-X $16.95

Attention LASA Members

Would you like your own offprint of the

LASA is making available two offprints from

The Handbook of Latin American Studies was launched in 1936 by Lewis Hanke, its first editor. Since that time it has continued to provide annotated bibliographies of the most significant publications on Latin America in the social sciences and humanities. Authors have appreciated its authoritative comments on their publications as well as access the Handbook provides to other specialists and their research.

In the interest of making information in the Handbook more broadly accessible, the Latin American Studies Association has agreed to a request by the Library of Congress and the University of Texas Press, publishers of the Handbook, that LASA offer photocopies of two large sections of Volume 53—the government and politics and the international relations entries—to scholars who would like to own their own desk copies.

When ordering, please detach or photocopy the form below.

The entire Volume 53, with entries that also include anthropology, economics, geography and sociology, is available from the University of Texas Press for $75.00. Order from The University of Texas Press, Box 7819, AUSTIN TX 78713.
